Juliana. Go ahead. Hello.

Wait a second. Hello. Okay.

So, I'm going to tell you a sad story. Your sad story? It's a sad story. It's a sad story.

And it starts like this. My mother only was living when I was born. And my father never stood up for me.

She decided to kill me and she went to a new town in Medellín. And in that times, the guerrillas had taken over the society. See? The society.

One year before, my mom was forced to leave her humble house. There were... Humble house. Good.

There were a lot of violence and my mom realized that she didn't have enough resources to get ahead with me. Okay. So, unfortunately, she had to give me up for adoption.

And one day I realized that she really loved me and I'm proud of her and her effort. Okay. So, your biological mother gave you in adoption.

And... But anyway, you're proud of her. Yeah, because she was forced to give me up for adoption because she didn't have enough resources. So, if she wanted to kill me, I would maybe be in a poor valley.

Okay. So, she decided to give me a better life for me. Could be a real story in Colombia.

I feel... Help us. Okay, could be a... Yes. Yes, it was bad.

It was evil. But it was good. Sorry.

It was good. Realistic. Yes, realistic.
